

Lia Makousky Interior Designer, Genesis Architecture

As an interior designer, Lia is responsible for creating interior environments that fulfill clients' needs. She assists in the space planning, design development and construction documents of tenant improvement and new construction projects.

Education and Training

- Bachelor of Arts, Interior Architecture, University of Wisconsin - Stevens Point

On a vast majority of projects that go through Genesis Architecture, Lia provides expertise on architectural finish and material selection and detailing. Lia's exceptional attention to detail and strong communication skills make her an ideal liaison to the client.

Prior to joining Genesis Architecture, Lia worked as an interior designer for Mancini•Duffy and TPG Architecture in New York. In these roles, Lia collaborated with design teams to coordinate programming documents, space plans, design concepts, finish and furniture plans. She also participated in the development of corporate programming and specifications standards. A notable project Lia worked on was the reorganization and image update for two merging advertising companies now known as Draft-FCB. For them, she designed an elaborate executive suite, corporate coffee bar and creative department break out areas.
